Waste Diversion During Construction

Lindsay has 10+ years of experience and a unique passion to better the waste management and construction industries – through technology and best practices-and as a result she strives to bring innovation and a strong commitment of strategic initiatives to her clients.

Lindsay views waste management as a commodity industry and believes there is a high value for all materials. It's her goal to help manage the unique material streams each client produces, divert them from landfill and report back on their progress. Her unique approach quantifies the data which in turn enables her to set realistic diversion goals and reduce overall costs by decreasing “waste” and increasing “recycling”.

Speaker bio

Lindsay currently Chairs the Young Construction Executives Club of Toronto and sits on both the Toronto Associations Executive Committee and esteemed Board of Directors.
