FAQs about CSC:

- Who is does what?
- Who is responsible for that?
- Where do I find that information?
- How does this work?

These questions are just some of the discussions we will have about our chapters and Association. Please join Peter Hiebert, CTR, 4th VP in an open discussion on what the structure of CSC looks like. Who is responsible for what at the chapter level and who can you talk to at the Association level.

Peter has been involved in the construction industry for over 30 years. Growing up in a contractor's home, learning about the construction industry was a normal part of his upbringing. Becoming a member of CSC was a natural fit, and he quickly understood the importance of architects, engineers and interior designers in the industry. Peter earned his CTR (Certified Technical Representative) designation in 2000. He has been and continues to be actively involved in CSC, both at the chapter and Association levels, and has received many awards of merit. Peter currently serves as 4th VP on the Association's executive council, and as a chair of Conference 2013.

Peter takes pride in being one of those product representatives that has a high level of knowledge in his industry and is always willing to provide product knowledge that will always be the best product for the application. He will not compromise his ethics for gain. Ethics are a big part of Peter's character.

Please join Peter in this informative discussion about our association.
